ANNEXURE-VII

COST BENEFIT ANALYSIS

The Golden Pagoda (Kongmu-kham) under consideration runs on the donation from the followers of the faith, revenue received from tourist lodge and other nominal fees collected from traditional museum and library. The maintenance of such a vast area is carried out on voluntary basis by the monks and students under their supervision. It is being non-commercial in nature, it won't be wrong to state here that if cost benefit analysis would do any justice to the project of spiritual nature.

Spiritual Development is one of the components of all round development of individual person. For all round development of individual person, one has to be physically, mentally and spiritually fit. The societies were always benefitted by such individual. It is through such teaching, it empowers person to develop qualities which cannot be monetized.

Thus, we will miss out the point completely if we judge the project on monetary basis.
