lengths are in radians and Δ is the fraction of the wave length. A constant Δ is appropriate.

A typical length, e.g., $\Delta = 0.0001$ is appropriate for light, or radio, or microwaves. The value of Δ is arbitrary. It is the value of Δ that you choose.

The following table provides some values, subjects and wave lengths.

The following table provides some values for typical lengths, e.g., $\Delta = 0.0001$.
