'Cos must be accountable to digi nagriks'

When invoked, rule 7 of the IT Intermediary Guidelines of 2021 will take away the immunity, especially for platforms that fail to take action against objectionable content.

The move comes at a time when several US states are suing Meta platforms and its Instagram unit for "fueling a youth mental health crisis" by making kids addicted. In a complaint filed on Tuesday, the attorneys general of 33 states including California and New York said Meta, which also operates Facebook, repeatedly misled the public about the dangers of its platforms, and knowingly induced young children and teenagers into addictive and compulsive social media use.

The minister said that

CSAM is a classic case where, despite serious issues and govt notices, platforms have responded very unsatisfactorily. Platforms like YouTube have responded very poorly while the Digital India Act, which will replace the existing IT Act, will have specific provisions around this issue, the government plans to take steps to clamp down on the companies almost immediately. "CSAM is a classic case where, despite serious issues and government notices, the platforms have responded very unsatisfactorily. So, Rule 7 may be involved for lifting the immunity under section 79."

RAJEEV CHANDRASEKHAR

such as YouTube have responded "very poorly" to the government's notice on the issue of CSAM. "We are extremely disappointed by the response of YouTube even on serious and heinous aspects such as child sexual abuse content," the minister said, adding that there needs to be "zero tolerance" on the matter. Chandrasekhar said that the government has been categorical in its appeal to all the platforms that they need to be accountable to the well-being of millions of Indian "digi nagriks" who use social media and other internet platforms. "We have emphasised on this aspect all along for almost the last two and a half years. We are focused on the basic principles of ensuring safety and trust to our digital users, and for ensuring accountability of the platforms. This is something that has also been highlighted by Prime Minister Narendra Modi."

In past one year, NCH got around 10,000 complaints against airlines

The consumer affairs ministry department has said that such "deceptive and manipulative conduct by using dark patterns in online interfaces unfairly" exploits consumers' interest and is classified as unfair trade practice under the Consumer Protection Act. While flyers have complained of these practices, often flagged on the much-hyped Air Seva service, the government has so far been unable to get airlines to address them comprehensively. Consumer affairs secretary Rohit Kumar Singh is learnt to have pointed out that a high level of grievances signal that consumer complaints are not addressed effectively.

In the past one year, almost 10,000 complaints regarding airlines were lodged with the National Consumer Helpline, the department said while convening a meeting of CEOs of all domestic airlines and online travel aggregators, and representatives of voluntary consumer organisations to discuss the issues and address consumers' concerns. The meeting is likely to take place in the fortnight.

The NCH data show nearly 41% of the grievances are related to denial of refund from airlines, even after cancellation of tickets, followed by deficiency in services (15%). Around 5% of the complaints deal with denial of boarding despite flyers holding valid tickets.

The consumer affairs ministry has said denial of boarding forces flyers to either cancel their journey or book new tickets at an exorbitant price.

On the airlines claiming "free mandatory web check-in" in their communications to consumers, but marking every seat as "paid" during the web check-in process, the ministry has said this leaves consumers no choice but to make extra payment to get a seat in the flight.

Transport has been included in the definition of "service" in Consumer Protection Act.

Pandal snack? 600 phuchkas used as decor go missing

Organisers fear poisoning after puja revellers plucked out the chemical-laced phuchkas from the south Kolkata pandal

Kolkata: What to eat in Kolkata is a gastronomic fantasy. What not to eat wasn't food for thought until Durga Puja organisers found 600-odd chemical-laced decorative phuchkas, the city's famed version of golgappas, missing from their pandal's decor.

Behala Natun Dal alerted police this week to the phuchka pilferage, fearful of the possibility of people who made off with the globules coming to harm after consuming those.

Convener Sandipan Banerjee said the south Kolkata puja committee knew some visitors might find the sight of phuchkas "tempting" and so had posted on social media that nobody should try scooping those out it. Many others scooped out chemically treated phuchkas from parts of the pandal, although, we hope not all ate them.

Sanchari Das, a resident of Dum Dum in north Kolkata, visited the pandal on Saptami and admitted to being enticed by the sight of so many phuchkas. The volunteers shooed us away from the decor. It now makes sense," she said.

Phuchkas mounted on sal leaf were hung from the pandal's roof in 15-odd layers. "Those kept in boxes remained out of reach. Some picked up even those phuchkas that had been symbolically offered to the idols," a committee member said.

"I guess we didn't quite anticipate the degree of curiosity and temptation that phuchkas might elicit."

and eating them as they contained chemicals.

"Resin and a hardener were used on the decorative phuchkas to preserve their crunchiness till the end of the festivities," said Banerjee.

"We were alarmed to see CCTV footage of a visitor plucking a phuchka from the shaal pata (dry sal leaf) base and devouring

In normalising bid, India resumes some visa services in Canada

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

New Delhi: With Canada having upped the level of security for Indian diplomats, the government Wednesday took a step towards normalising visa services by resuming work for entry, business, medical and conference visas. The development followed foreign minister S Jaishankar's statement on Sunday that India would resume visa services very soon.

However, tourist and e-visas for Canadian nationals will remain suspended for now. India had halted all visa services, including in third countries, for Canadian nationals on September 21, saying Canada had failed to fulfil its obligations under the Vienna Convention by not ensuring the safety and security of Indian diplomats. This followed the controversy over Canadian PM Justin Trudeau's allegation that India had a role in the killing of Khalistan leader and Canadian national Hardeep Singh Nijjar.

India had said on Sunday, hours after Jaishankar's remark, that it was reviewing the security situation. The Indian high commission in Ottawa said in a statement on Wednesday that after a considered review of the security situation that took into account some recent Canadian measures, the Indian missions in Canada had decided to resume services in the aforementioned categories.

"Further decisions, as appropriate, would be intimated based on continuing evaluation of the situation," it said. Entry visas, which have been resumed, are granted to people of Indian origin and to those who are dependent family members of employed Indian citizens in Canada. The Indian decision to resume some visa services came in the middle of another diplomatic flare-up between the two countries over the expulsion of 41 Canadian diplomats by India. While Canada continues to process visas for Indian nationals, it has shut services in its consulates in Chandigarh, Mumbai and Bengaluru.

Canada had been issuing 15,000 visas every week to Indian nationals before the disruption caused by the diplomatic spat. It remains to be seen if there's any drastic fall in that number because of the shortage of staff here. A Canadian minister was quoted as saying on Tuesday that while Canada was expecting to process 38,000 visas this year for Indians under the Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship (IRCC) category, it will now be able to handle only 20,000.

Ram temple consecration on Jan 22, Modi to attend

Akhilesh Singh & Shalabh | TNN

New Delhi/Lucknow: The idol of Ram Lalla will be installed on January 22 at the Ayodhya temple in the presence of PM Narendra Modi, capping decades of efforts, including the largest mass mobilisation post-independence and a hard-fought legal battle, to reclaim the site. This could potentially set the stage for a long spell of celebrations. Although January 22 had been speculated to be among the probable dates for installing the idol of Ram Lalla (Lord Ram in child form), the confirmation came after a delegation of the Shri Ram Janmabhoomi Teerth Kshetra trust called on the PM to invite him for what is set to be a grand ceremony and may see a large number of people visiting Ayodhya to participate.

"Today is a day full of emotions. Officials of Shri Ram Janmabhoomi Teerth Kshetra trust had come to meet me at my residence. They have invited me to come to Ayodhya on the occasion of the consecration of the Shri Ram temple. I feel very blessed. It is my good fortune that in my lifetime, I will witness this historic occasion," the PM posted on X as he greeted his followers with "Jai Sri Ram" and posted a photo of himself with the functionaries of the Ayodhya trust.

Champat Rai, general secretary of the trust, who along with Nripendra Misra, former principal secretary to the PM and head of the temple construction committee, visited the PM, said RSS chief Mohan Bhagwat and Uttar Pradesh chief minister Yogi Adityanath will be among those present on the landmark occasion. The consecration of Ram Mandir at the 'Janmasthan' will mark the fulfilment of BJP's 'mandir wahin banayenge' (we promise to build the temple at the same spot) campaign and come just ahead of the likely announcement of Lok Sabha elections. It is set to be one of the major themes of BJP's 2024 campaign. The party had already appeared to be gearing up for early announcement of the date, with Modi in his Dussehra speech saying the "much-awaited moment is about to arrive". "Ram Lalla virajman hone hi wale hain," he had said.
